THE BEST IS YET TO COME
Lesson for January 29, 1984
Bible Study Passages: Isaiah 35:1-6a, 9-10

INTRODUCTION

You've heard the expression, "He doesn't have a prayer." It is an expression of hopelessness. If you don't have a prayer, you don't have anything.

Without hope we belong to that portion of the human race who commit suicide. Everyone needs someone or something to hope in. Most of us look to tomorrow for a better day when things will be different than they are. We long for relief from the pain of illness or from the grief of loss. Or, we may find ourselves praying for broken relationships to mend or for a runaway teenager to return home.

On the national and world scene we may hope for peace and brotherhood among strife-torn countries. We may hope for nuclear power to be used for peaceful means rather than to destroy human life. At times we look at what's happening in the world and wonder if anyone has a prayer.

In this week's lesson Isaiah speaks to the needs of Israel for hope to sustain them through times of darkness and bitter loss.

A RESTORED LAND [Isaiah 35:1-2]

Israel knew many enemies. Many were the times that she was invaded by aggressive Assyrians, Babylonians, Greeks, Syrians, and Romans. The land itself became a wasteland of destruction and abuse. How could the land know fertility and vibrance once again?

Isaiah assured the people that their land would be renewed and restored. What had become a desolate desert would be fruitful and beautiful again. Isaiah even suggests that the land would one day "blossom as the rose."

Those of you who grow and love roses will understand Isaiah's imagery for what is more beautiful and promising than a rose. You can say many things with flowers but, in my book a rose says it all!

WORDS OF HOPE [Isaiah 35:3-6a]

If you hold some good news that may bring hope and comfort to someone, by all means share it. This was God's instruction to Isaiah for the people. They were to spread abroad the hope of renewal to all those who were with "weak hands... feeble knees... of fearful heart."

Depression has a way of shutting down a person's motivation to do ordinary daily tasks. Despair can render a person almost helpless. Isaiah's message of hope brought new life to a fragile people. "Behold, your God will come... and save you." The message is clear that not only the land will be restored, but the people as well. A new day would dawn and there would be great joy and celebration, for "... the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped...the lame man leap...and the tongue of the dumb sing."

A HOLY HIGHWAY [Isaiah 35:8-10]

The people of Israel had lived many years in insecurity. They needed reassurance that God would always be with them despite their disobedience. They longed for a new day when life would be as happy as their past was said. They could not know of Christ's later promise and description of a heavenly home with eternal joy.

Isaiah describes a highway that would lead to everlasting joy, and no one but the righteous could pass over. Evil doers nor wild beasts would bother those who travel this highway, for God would protect them.

The New Testament broadens Isaiah's description into a heavenly home as a highway that "leads into life." As Christians we know that Christ leads the way and has prepared a place of eternal joy for weary pilgrims.

God is smiling on us in the midst of the very cold winter. Let us pray for people in other parts of the world who are homeless due to the weather.

Brother Willie Harvey of Spout Spring, departed this life this past Saturday. Brother Harvey was a very faithful church worker. He was a member of Mt. Shiloh, but was active in the work of Galilee and Promise Land. Funeral services will be conducted from Promise Land on Wednesday, Jan. 25 at 2 p.m. Pastor Davis will officiate.

Which parent are you?

"Which Parent Are You?
"I got two A's," the small boy cried,
His voice was filled with glee.
His father very bluntly asked,
"Why didn't you get three?"
"Mom, I've got the dishes done,"
The girl called from the door.
Her mother very calmly said,
"Did you sweep the floor?"
"I've mowed the grass," the tall boy said
"And put the mower away."
His father asked him with a shrug,
"Did you clean off the clay?"
The children in the house next door
Seem happy and content.
The same thing happened over there,
But this is how it went:

"I've got two A's", the small boy cried,
His voice was filled with glee.
His father very proudly said, "That's great;
I'm glad you belong to me."
"Mom, I've got the dishes done,"
the girl called from the door.
Her mother smiled softly and said,
"Each day I love you more."
"I've mowed the grass," the tall boy said,
And put the mower away."
His father answered with much joy,
"You've made my happy day.
Children deserve a little praise
For tasks they're asked to do,
If they're to lead a happy life,
SO MUCH DEPENDS ON YOU!

Tips for babysitter

By SHIRLEY W. WALTON
Extension Agent, Home Economics

Babysitting is a great way to make some extra money, but it requires taking on a great deal of responsibility. Like any job, it requires knowing what is involved, what is expected of you and what you can expect of the child's parents.

By learning and knowing some of the basic techniques regarding child care, a beginner can soon become a sought-after pro. Many young people make considerable amount of spending money by being a good babysitter.

A babysitter should always act with safety and cleanliness in mind. To insure one's own safety, it is important to learn and talk to new employers before taking a job. The babysitter needs to know what the parents want done, when they want it done and how to do it.

If you decide to babysit, ask the child's parents for information that might prove useful. Find out what time they hope to return, and write down the phone numbers at which they can be reached. Also list the numbers of a close neighbor, the family doctor, the local rescue squad, police, fire department and poison control center. (The hospitals in Lynchburg are our nearest Poison Control Centers.)

Ask the parents about the child's routine. Find out what and when the baby or small child should eat or go to bed. Be sure to get instruction on rules concerning TV watching and whether or not a bath is in order before bedtime. If you don't know how to bathe a small child, tell the parents. A washing up may be all that is required.

If the infant still wears diapers and you do not know how to change a diaper, ask to be shown. When dispersing, always keep one hand on the baby and never leave the child alone for a second. The same rule applies when bathing a child. When bathing a child, one can fall or drown in just seconds. Let a doorbell or telephone ring until you are finished. Remember the child's safety is of the foremost importance.

Be prepared to watch the child at all times when he or she is awake. When asleep, check on the infant every half hour and don't think of going to sleep yourself. Always be ready to handle whatever emergency may arise. Keep the emergency telephone numbers at hand.

Youngsters are curious about their surroundings. Their desire to learn often gets them into trouble. Also, remember that toddlers and young children will take thorough advantage of a babysitter by telling them that mother or daddy lets me do this. Take care to prevent dangerous situations. Make certain that any access to stairways is effectively blocked.

Always hold a baby securely when the child is on the table, bed or chair. Do not leave the youngster alone for even a second. The infant could fall easily. Pick up toys before children fall over them. Wipe up spills immediately to prevent falls.

Prevent fires by keeping matches out of the child's reach. Keep children away from heaters, the range, electrical outlets, water faucets, lighted cigarettes or hot drinks.

Avoid cuts and scratches by removing from the child's reach such sharp objects as needles, scissors and knives. If a cut occurs, wash it with soap and water thoroughly and cover with a sterile bandage. Ease the pain of a small burn with cold running water. Scalding is another dangerous possibility with children. Babies and toddlers are curious and will put anything in their mouths. Check reachable tabletops and floors for beads, rings, buttons, coins and tacks and never feed a baby hard candy, popcorn, nuts or any other food such as an apple with peeling on it. A child can easily choke on these items. Do not put pillows or plastic bags in a child's crib as they can cause suffocation.

The final rule of babysitting is to control your own behavior. Do not take food from the refrigerator unless the parents have told you to do so. And make sure things are in the same order when you leave as they were when you arrived. Do not make unnecessary phone calls or have visitors over while babysitting. Assume your new responsibility in a businesslike manner and you should acquire other babysitting opportunities.

Our office has some excellent information on babysitting. If you would like a free copy, you may call us at 352-8244 or write us at P.O. Box 498, Appomattox, VA 24522.

If you have a homemaking question or problem, please call or write. It is always a pleasure to hear from you and to help you.

Have a good week!

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Laura's Cheese Spoon Bread
1½ cups boiling water
¾ cup white cornmeal
2 teaspoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 oz. grated American cheese
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons margarine
2 teaspoons baking powder
3 eggs, separated

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease a 1½ quart casserole. In 2 quart saucepan, into boiling water gradually stir cornmeal, sugar and salt. Over low heat, cook, stirring constantly, until mixture is thick and smooth, about two minutes; Stir in baking powder, remove from heat. Beat egg yolks. Stir in small amount of hot mixture; slowly pour egg mixture back into cornmeal mixture, stirring rapidly with wire whisk to prevent lumping; set aside. Beat egg whites just until stiff peaks form. Gently fold cornmeal mixture into egg whites; pour into casserole. Bake 50 to 60 minutes or until puffy and set.

Many thanks to Laura McCleney for sharing this delicious recipe with me. It is perfect for a cold winter night or that special company dinner.

Let's Talk Phownership

Once you're sold on the idea of buying your phone, you can say goodbye forever to those monthly equipment rental charges you're now paying. It's true! Federal regulations now allow us to sell you the phones you're using. More specifically, the phones you're renting.

Phownership is offered to all our Continental Telephone customers. If you are currently renting your phones, you should buy them now. However, if you don't have "Touch Calling" service, you may want to consider it before buying.

The important thing to remember is, we're selling your phone. To you. And if you buy it, you'll save. Just pick it up, call your local Continental Telephone business office and let's talk about it right now.

CONTEL Continental Telephone System
